

Through the time and space of
everyday life,
we continually
choose between what is more and
less important.
Some things
remain vital
forever, others
only for the moment.