SARB website launch

30 November 2020

Dear subscribers

Bringing you the brand-new SARB website

We are excited to announce the public launch of our newly designed website tomorrow, Tuesday, 1 December 2020. We are delighted to bring you a top-to-bottom redesign of the website which is faster, easier to navigate and more user-friendly. We aim to publish engaging, relevant content in a variety of styles and tones to meet the diverse needs of our audiences. We will be constantly updating our content and will continue to improve the experience of our users.

While we have made every effort to ensure we are ready on all fronts, we expect some users may take some time to get used to the new website and could experience technical glitches. We welcome your feedback and hope you enjoy the new website experience.

As a subscriber to SARB notifications or RSS feeds, you will have to subscribe to the service again. Please see a message in this regard on the landing page to assist in this process. You will also have to update your browser to the latest version of either Chrome, Firefox, Edge or Safari.

Should you experience any problems or have any queries, please let us know. Enjoy the new website and please send your comments to the Website Support Team: SARB-AEM-Web-Support@resbank.co.za

Kind Regards

The website project team
