South Africa's balance of payments 1946 - 2000

The South African Reserve Bank (Bank) became officially responsible for the compilation of South Africa's statistics on the international balance of payments and investment position in 1956, in terms of Government Notice Nos. 702 and 703 of 20 April 1956. Basic data on the balance of payments and the country's international investment position are collected from a wide variety of sources. The Bank always attempts to provide the most accurate information about the country's transactions with the rest of the world. With this in mind, the Bank conducts regular censuses of South Africa's foreign transactions, liabilities and assets. The results of these censuses are used to revise the data time series for previous years, to determine new benchmarks and to select new sample surveys.

Since the early 1980s there have been significant changes in the scope and complexity of international transactions in the world economy. These changes emanated from the liberalisation of financial markets, the widespread abolition of capital controls, innovations in the creation of financial instruments and new approaches to the restructuring of external debt. In addition, there was strong growth in international trade in services. These developments necessitated changes in the recording and the classification of such transactions in the structure of the balance-of-payments accounts. The fifth edition of the International Monetary Fund's Balance of Payments Manual standardises the concepts, definitions and classifications of international transactions. It also facilitates the collection, organisation and comparability of statistics on the balance of payments, international investment position and foreign debt.

The Balance of Payments Manual (BPM5)

- provides a conceptual framework to reconcile balance-of-payments flows (transactions) with stocks of financial assets and liabilities (the international investment position);
- harmonises the balance-of-payments transaction flows with the rest-of-the-world account in the United Nations' System of National Accounts (SNA);
- distinguishes between international transactions in services and transactions in income;
- expands the list of identifiable transactions in services to reflect their growing importance and their contributions to or linkages with other statistical systems; and
- expands the coverage of financial flows and the restructuring of stocks.

Previous special balance-of-payments supplements to the Quarterly Bulletin focused mainly on the revision of balance-of-payments statistics following the results of specific census projects; the last supplement of this nature was released in June 1993. The present supplement is occasioned primarily by changes made to the definitions of certain balance-of-payments aggregates and by changes in the analytical presentation of balance-of-payments statements as proposed in the BPM5. The purpose of this supplement is to present a comprehensive overview of developments in balance-of-payments aggregates since 1946 in a format which is consistent with the international framework presented by the International Monetary Fund (IMF). Revised balance-of-payments statements for the period 1991 to 1999 have already been released in the June 1999 Quarterly Bulletin.

The structure of the balance of payments as presented in BPM5 corresponds with the rest-of-the-world account in the national accounts and consists of the current account, the capital transfer account and the financial account. The definition and coverage of the current account of the balance of payments were revised in the BPM5. The current account now consists of separate accounts for goods, services, income and current transfers, and it measures transactions related to production, income and expenditure. Previously, the current account by definition included all transfers.

Transactions in goods consist of most of the movable goods that changed ownership between South African residents and non-residents. In conformity with the new guidelines, this classification has been expanded to incorporate certain transactions which were previously recorded under services such as goods for processing, repairs on goods and goods procured in ports by carriers. The expansion of goods transactions to include goods for processing and repairs on goods, meets the criteria specified by the SNA. Processing implies that goods are temporarily sent abroad for some kind of transformation without any change of ownership. In the case of repairs on goods, only the net fee for repairs is recorded. Goods procured in ports by carriers, i.e. the supply of fuel and provisions to ships and aircraft, were previously registered in the services account as transportation services.

The list of standard identified components and sub-components of international trade in service has been expanded. The greater emphasis on disaggregated data stems from the perception that the production and trade of services differ from the production and trade of goods. The services account includes the transportation of goods and passengers, travel and other services. The category for other services includes construction services, financial and insurance services, miscellaneous business, professional and technical services, as well as personal, cultural and recreational services and government services.

Income refers to income earned by South African residents from non-residents and vice versa. The two components of income flows, namely compensation of employees and investment income, are identified separately as current-account transactions. Compensation of employees includes wages, salaries and other benefits earned by individuals from countries other than those in which they are resident. Investment income comprises income earned from the provision of financial capital and is classified as direct and non-direct (i.e. portfolio and other) income.

Current transfers represent transactions offsetting the provision of resources between residents and non-residents with no quid pro quo (reciprocal exchange) in economic value. Current transfers are regarded as having a direct impact on the level of disposable income and hence on the consumption of goods and services. Transactions classified as current transfers include gifts in cash or in kind to be used for consumption purposes, social insurance contributions and benefits, and taxes imposed by governments.

The Southern Africa Customs Union (SACU) Agreement provides for the transfer of funds by South Africa as administrator of the customs revenue pool to the other member countries. Such payments can be subdivided into a basic payment of revenue collected on imports into the member country, and a further payment to compensate the member for the advantages accruing to South Africa in terms of the SACU Agreement. For greater consistency among the member countries of SACU, the additional amount of compensation to member countries in terms of the SACU Agreement is recorded as a current transfer payment in the South African balance of payments. The amount collected from member countries is still part of the adjustment made to merchandise export values for regional coverage. Previously, the full payment in terms of the SACU Agreement was treated as part of the coverage adjustment.

The newly created capital transfer account consists of two major components: capital transfers and the acquisition or disposal of non-produced, non-financial assets. Capital transfers are transactions offsetting the transfer of the ownership of fixed assets, transfers of funds associated with the development of fixed assets (such as a grant by a foreign government earmarked for a housing project in South Africa), debt forgiveness (previously excluded from the balance-of-payments accounts) and transfers by migrants, i.e. the value of household and personal effects as well as financial claims and liabilities transferred by migrants from former to new economies. Transactions in non-produced, non-financial assets are not identified separately in the presentation of South Africa's balance of payments.

The financial account, which includes roughly all the transactions recorded in the former capital account, comprises all transactions in foreign assets and foreign liabilities as well as transactions involving the creation and liquidation of financial claims associated with changes of ownership in foreign financial assets and liabilities during a specific period. The primary classification is by functional category or type of investment (direct investment, portfolio investment and other investment). For analytical purposes in the balance-of-payments context, the components of investment are all classified according to the institutional sector classification of the resident creditor or debtor (monetary authorities, public authorities, public corporations, the banking sector and the private non-banking sector).

As in previous editions of the Balance of Payments Manual, international investment is classified primarily on a directional basis, i.e. non-resident investment in the reporting economy and resident investment abroad. Direct investment includes transactions related to the acquisition of share capital in foreign countries by establishing new businesses, or through mergers and takeovers. The objective must be to obtain a meaningful say in the management of the enterprises involved. Furthermore direct investment comprises not only the initial equity transaction establishing the relationship between a direct investor and an enterprise, but also all subsequent transactions between affiliated enterprises. Transactions in real estate also form part of direct investment. In the BPM5 a few minor changes have been made to the scope of direct investment. These include

- the lowering of the equity threshold used to determine a direct investment relationship between a direct investor in one country and a direct investment enterprise in another country, from the previous 25 per cent to 10 per cent. In the case of South Africa, this change has had only a marginal impact on direct investment flows and the country's international investment position;
- the subdivision, for the first time, of equity and other capital; and
- the exclusion of loan capital from direct investment, other than that representing permanent debt (i.e. loan capital representing a lasting interest) in the case of banks and other financial intermediaries in a direct relationship.

Portfolio investment consists of international equity and debt securities not classified as direct investment. The coverage of portfolio investment has been expanded to reflect the growth in new financial instruments in recent years. In addition to long-term debt and equity securities, money-market debt instruments and tradable financial derivatives are included in portfolio investment. Transactions in derivatives are treated as separate (mainly financial) transactions, rather than as integral parts of underlying transactions to which they may be linked as hedges.

Other investment is a residual category which includes all financial transactions not covered under direct investment, portfolio investment or gold and other foreign reserves. In contrast to both direct investment and portfolio investment, the BPM5 suggests that a long-term and a short-term maturity breakdown should be maintained as a third-level basis of classification. Other investment comprises trade credits, loans, currency and deposits, and other assets and liabilities. In the case of South Africa, the use of IMF credit facilities by central government as well as the utilisation of credit facilities by the Reserve Bank is not classified as part of other investment as proposed in the BPM5. For analytical purposes, these liabilities are treated as part of reserve-related liabilities.

The adoption of the double-entry accounting system for recording balance-of-payment transactions means that, in principle, the net sum of all credit and debit entries should equal the change in the country's net gold and other foreign reserves. The net effect of differences in coverage, timing and valuation and also the errors and omissions that occur in compiling all the individual component series, are entered as unrecorded transactions and calculated as a balancing item.

Changes in the country's gross and net gold and other foreign reserves are identified separately. The objective is to exclude compensatory borrowing from non-residents in order to obtain a balance which reflects the influence that "pure" balance-of-payments transactions have on the country's gold and other foreign reserves. Changes in the net foreign reserves are determined by subtracting from changes in the gross gold and foreign reserves the changes in the liabilities of the Reserve Bank, changes in short-term foreign loans to the central government and valuation adjustments. South Africa's foreign reserves therefore reflect the liquid assets available to the monetary authorities for financing disequilibria in the balance of payments. Foreign reserves include gold, special drawing rights, the reserve position in the IMF and foreign-exchange holdings.

The international investment position measures an economy's stock of external assets and liabilities whereas the financial account measures transactions in these assets and liabilities. Both the financial account and the international investment position are subdivided into direct investment, portfolio investment and other investment. These balance sheet totals could be used inter alia to determine or check investment income receipts and payments to and from the rest of the world.

1. The weighted average exchange rate of the rand is based on trade in and consumption of manufactured goods between South Africa and its fourteen most important trading partners. The weighting structure is described in an article in the September 1999 Quarterly Bulletin.

The weights of the four major currencies are in brackets: Euro (35,70), US dollar (15,15), British pound (14,91), Japanese yen (10,26).

Index: 1995 = 100.

2. Figures as at end of the period.

3. Average daily fixing prices. Prices per fine ounce.

4. Rates on bankers' acceptances.

5. Weighted average of the banks' daily rates at approximately 10:30 (US dollar). Weights are based on the banks' foreign exchange transactions.

1. The weighted average exchange rate of the rand is based on trade in and consumption of manufactured goods between South Africa and its fourteen most important trading partners. The weighting structure is described in an article in the September 1999 Quarterly Bulletin.

The weights of the four major currencies are in brackets: Euro (35,70), US dollar (15,15), British pound (14,91), Japanese yen (10,26).

Index: 1995 = 100.

2. Figures as at end of the period.

3. Average daily fixing prices. Prices per fine ounce.

4. Rates on bankers' acceptances.

5. Weighted average of the banks' daily rates at approximately 10:30 (US dollar). Weights are based on the banks' foreign exchange transactions.

1. The weighted average exchange rate of the rand is based on trade in and consumption of manufactured goods between South Africa and its fourteen most important trading partners. The weighting structure is described in an article in the September 1999 Quarterly Bulletin.

The weights of the four major currencies are in brackets: Euro (35,70), US dollar (15,15), British pound (14,91), Japanese yen (10,26).

Index: 1995 = 100.

2. Figures are at end of the period.

3. Average daily fixing prices. Prices per fine ounce.

4. Rates on bankers' acceptances.

5. Weighted average of the banks' daily rates at approximately 10:30 (US dollar). Weights are based on the banks' foreign exchange transactions.
