

South African Reserve Bank

Conference

Biographical notes template for contributing authors

Title of paper:

Implementing Macroprudential Policies: a South African Reserve Bank Perspective

Name and surname:

G.N. Farrell

Affiliation (institution):

Dr G.N. Farrell
Financial Stability Department
South African Reserve Bank

Achievements: (major research output/publications)

Greg Farrell is a macroprudential economist in the Financial Stability Department of the South African Reserve Bank, and a Visiting Professor in the Economics Department at the University of the Witwatersrand. Prior to joining the Bank in 1998 he worked at Standard Bank, Rhodes University and the Institute for Social and Economic Research (ISER) at the University of KwaZulu-Natal. He has a PhD in Economics from the University of Birmingham. His research interests lie in monetary and macroprudential policy, and applied time series econometrics.