5. Foreign sector/rest of the world

Non-resident institutional units transacting with resident institutional units are grouped into the foreign sector or the rest of the world. The classification of the foreign sector is based on the distinction between residents and non-residents. The concept of residency is based on the centre of economic interest and not on nationality or purely legal criteria. An institutional unit is considered to be a resident of a country when it has an economic interest in a country, that is, when it has a location (dwelling or premises) within the economic territory of a country from where it intends to engage indefinitely or over a finite but lengthy period of time (longer than a year) in economic activity on a significant scale. The economic territory of a country consists of the geographic territory administered by government within which persons, goods and capital move freely inclusive of airspace, territorial waters and enclaves.

An institutional unit or enterprise is therefore a resident of the Republic of South Africa when it has an economic interest in South Africa, that is, when it has premises within the economic territory of South Africa from where it engages or intends to engage indefinitely or over a finite but lengthy period of time in significant economic activity in South Africa. The foreign sector or non-residents could similarly be defined as institutional units or enterprises with a centre of economic interest outside the borders of the Republic of South Africa.

Branches and subsidiaries of foreign enterprises domiciled in South Africa are therefore classified as resident institutional units. In this instance, the foreign enterprise or non-resident owner is classified as part of the foreign sector, while the foreign-owned subsidiary or branch is classified as a South African resident. By contrast, branches and subsidiaries of South African companies domiciled in the rest of world are classified as non-resident or part of the foreign sector.
