3.3.3 Other local government units

This classification includes unincorporated entities not classified as quasi-corporations.

4. Household sector

A household consists of an individual or small group of individuals sharing the same living accommodation, pooling some or all of their income and wealth, while consuming goods and services collectively. The household sector consists of the following institutional units:

4.1 Households

Individuals are members of a household and are not treated as separate institutional units.

4.2 Unincorporated business enterprises of households

Unincorporated business enterprises of households comprise households engaging in market production as one-man businesses or sole proprietorships or partnerships. They are legal entities but are not organised in the form of a company, and the household and business accounts cannot be separated. The one-man business or sole proprietorship can be with or without employees with the latter being own-account workers.

4.3 Non-profit institutions serving households

Non-profit institutions serving households (NPISHs) are legal or social entities that provide goods and services to households free of charge or at economically insignificant prices but that are neither controlled nor mainly financed by government. NPISHs include welfare organisations, aid societies, clubs, non-profit hospitals and schools, churches, trade unions, stokvels, political parties and such companies previously registered under Section 21 of the Companies Act, 1973 and now according to the new Companies Act, 2008 the name should be followed by the abbreviation "NPC".

4.4 Private trusts

Private trusts are assets of individuals and estates administered by, among others, banks, trust companies and attorneys on their behalf.

4.5 Friendly societies (October 2011)

Friendly societies are governed in terms of the Friendly Societies Act, 1956 (Act No. 25 of 1956). A friendly society can be defined as a formal mutual organisation existing with the purpose of providing its members or their relatives with benefits, relief or maintenance when in financial difficulty due to, among other things, sickness, death, unemployment and retirement.

5. Foreign sector/rest of the world

Non-resident institutional units transacting with resident institutional units are grouped into the foreign sector or the rest of the world. The classification of the foreign sector is based on the distinction between residents and non-residents. The concept of residency is based on the centre of economic interest and not on nationality or purely legal criteria. An institutional unit is considered to be a resident of a country when it has an economic interest in a country, that is, when it has a location (dwelling or premises) within the economic territory of a country from where it intends to engage indefinitely or over a finite but lengthy period of time (longer than a year) in economic activity on a significant scale. The economic territory of a country consists of the geographic territory administered by government within which persons, goods and capital move freely inclusive of airspace, territorial waters and enclaves.

An institutional unit or enterprise is therefore a resident of the Republic of South Africa when it has an economic interest in South Africa, that is, when it has premises within the economic territory of South Africa from where it engages or intends to engage indefinitely or over a finite but lengthy period of time in significant economic activity in South Africa. The foreign sector or non-residents could similarly be defined as institutional units or enterprises with a centre of economic interest outside the borders of the Republic of South Africa.

Branches and subsidiaries of foreign enterprises domiciled in South Africa are therefore classified as resident institutional units. In this instance, the foreign enterprise or non-resident owner is classified as part of the foreign sector, while the foreign-owned subsidiary or branch is classified as a South African resident. By contrast, branches and subsidiaries of South African companies domiciled in the rest of world are classified as non-resident or part of the foreign sector.

5.1 Foreign financial corporate sector

5.1.1 Financial companies listed on the JSE Limited and classified as non-resident

Financial companies with a dual listing, both on the JSE Limited and on another exchange, but domiciled in a country other than the Republic of South Africa are classified as non-resident.
